

WORKSHOP / INDIVIDUAL CONSULTATIONS
for boards of directors and executives

April, 2020

Raczkowski

The global economic slowdown immediately forced many companies to change their strategies. Organisations are developing different scenarios and preparing to take key decisions defining their future.

They need help with law, leadership skills, human resources reorganisation and business psychology in the crisis. In response to a large number of questions from management boards we organise individual consultations for companies.

The aim of the consultations is to provide new and effective solutions developed by us during the epidemic. These solutions have already been applied by our clients.

Moreover, we would like to present the ideas and decisions the entrepreneurs were taking into consideration or have already made, especially in manufacturing sector.
